Gimp having a problem with my.xcf
image? I'm trying to import an image
from a xcf file to use it as a background image for a HTML page. I've looked all over the internet and tried all of the most recent fixes people have suggested. It just doesn't work. Here is my code so far: Image Import Test and then my js file var oImage = new Image(); oImage.src = "test.xcf";

I am using Firefox 3.0.13 with Gimp 2.6.4 on Ubuntu Hardy. I've also tried using Google Chrome, but I'm not very good at it yet.

A: I've figured it out. I needed to put the image in a separate folder from the HTML file. With that done, I just had to change the .src of my Image object.

var oImage = new Image(); oImage.src = "test.xcf"; document.getElementById("background").src = oImage.src;

Thanks to everyone who read this! If I manage to find a way to get this to work in Google Chrome, I'll update this post. If anyone knows how to do it, please let me know. $menu-bg-color: #fff; .side-nav-collapse { padding-right: 0;
