a gun for self-defense and the right to bear arms for the purpose of hunting and sport shooting. Keep Learning While most states do not require a minimum age to purchase a firearm, there are a few exceptions. In Massachusetts, for example, a person is required to be at least 18 years old to purchase a firearm. In addition, the majority of states have age restrictions on carrying a concealed handgun. Federal law also sets restrictions on firearm possession for minors who live on tribal lands. Although the Constitution grants citizens the right to own a firearm, American law dictates that gun ownership is not protected by the Second Amendment. Most states have passed laws criminalizing people who use a gun to threaten or harm another person. The United States has had an annual National Instant Criminal Background Check System since 1998. Every year, the federal government conducts background checks for almost two million gun sales. A federal law that was signed in 1998 established the National Instant Criminal Background Check System. The background check system is used to check people who are purchasing a firearm, and this includes private sellers. Private sellers include pawn shops and individuals who sell a gun at a garage sale.
