The relative yield factors of priority metals of interest in the drinking-water and metal finishing industries are determined. Using the relative yield factors, the amounts of metals of interest and their industry-specific potential daily intake are calculated. Calculation of the total daily intake of the metals of interest illustrates that many metals have daily intakes that are less than the maximum daily intakes of these metals recommended by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. The ratio of the daily intake of cadmium to the maximum daily intake for adults recommends that standards for this metal be updated or strengthened as recommended by the Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry.Q: Unable to have the same package id for a two different modules I have two packages in my project.
