- Randomly and appropriately distorted - Auto level and crosstalk cancellation - Randomly and appropriately panning - Nice sound for every sound source The application will periodically randomly and appropriately distort the frequencies of the sound sources. Reducing the amount of distortion will give the sound the similar characteristics of the real speakers, so for every sound source there's a chance to hear the same sound with different levels of distortion, and of course you can change the distortion level for each sound by sliding the bar. By using the combo wheel you can set the panning of the speakers, to be more natural there are options between left, center and right for every sound. The crosstalk cancellation is applied when you enable this option, to hear the same sound from every sound source. You can set the sound volume level, crosstalk cancellation and panning, while in the sound menu tab you can mute and unmute the sound of each sound source, play the sound in the speaker of your phone, play the sound in speaker phone, and invert the sound. The application is fully compatible with 3rd party equalizers like EqualizerWave, SoundGraph, and

I have a Gridview in an asp.net web forms application that has a column of hyperlinks. I need to find the parent page that the link is on so that I can direct the user there. I tried finding the parent page in a seperate method that was only called from the RowDataBound event but it did not seem to work. Any ideas on how to accomplish this? A: You need to add a RowDataBound() event handler and write something like: protected void grid_Rownum_RowDataBound(object sender, GridViewRowEventArgs e) { if (e.Row.RowType == DataControlRowType.DataRow) { LinkButton lb = (LinkButton)e.Row.FindControl("ParentLink"); if (lb!= null) lb.NavigateUrl = Page.Request.RawUrl; } } This should work. /* * This file is part of the SDWebImage package. * (c) Olivier Poitrey * * For the full copyright and license information, please view the LICENSE * file that was
