Main menu You are here:Home / Music by Day, Music by Night, Music With Friends, Music By Song Music by Day, Music by Night, Music With Friends, Music By Song I've had an introvert within all of us, a side of us that wishes it could go unseen, put to sleep, get lost. A shadow that lurks, listens, and watches, but rarely speaks or shares. Perhaps this person is within us all, but not always – not to the extent of a full blown, seeping illness. This sort of introvert is one of the common types, but not all are alike. For this piece, you're asked to go to your "music by day" playlist. If you don't have one, put together one. Find some music, be it music for daily, or a certain time, that can make you feel, think or just feel better. (I'd recommend some time music, as there's something nice about feeling like you're out of time, away from your regular schedule) Then go through your "music by night" playlist. We all have something we listen to at night, but generally it's a different set of songs. When you're feeling low, or want to relax, go through your playlist and select songs from each category. If there is a song or genre that you want to explore more, go through your "music with friends" playlist and pick that music. You can even make a specific one, or select a playlist that you enjoy and go through it. We'll have some extra time set aside in a moment, so make sure you get through both playlists and add some music to your everyday playlist. Share this: Like this: Here's a quick list of suggested food items for breakfast, lunch and dinner, along with a few snacks and treats. A lot of what's here may be familiar, but if you're still trying to come up with a good alternative, or just want to test out what you already know, you should find something to try out. Breakfast Some of the suggestions may seem like a strange time to eat, but here are the reasons why: It's a lighter meal than some of the other options. It's less likely to add a lot of extra calories (so, if you were planning on ordering up a slice of pie for dessert, you won't need to eat anything else that day). It will be easier to get your work done while it's still dark out. It is important to note that everything on this list is relatively healthy, but if you're trying to cut down on certain things or make
