Andrew Levick: Too many young women seem to have fallen in love with Donald Trump. Them and the rest of us. Andrew Levick considers the power of language and their influence on politics. My children are seven and eight years old. They are worried about what a Donald Trump presidency might mean for them and their country. I think they are worrying too much. If my kids are worried enough to want to run away from the world, they are surely worried enough about what a Donald Trump presidency might mean for their country and the world. Our own political beliefs do not seem to be an essential part of who we are. We are not the kind of people who get trigger-happy and vote for Trump because we are suddenly all racist. We are not the kind of people who do that. We just moved here about two and a half years ago. We met a lot of people in that time. We
