Creating Collections Photoshop offers a variety of ways to create image collections. You can build a collection of images that you want to manage in one place. At its most fundamental level, a collection is a group of related images that you want to keep together. For example, you may have a collection of images that you've taken on a vacation to a particular destination. You can then quickly create another collection of images that has only the images you took on the previous vacation. (For example, a collection named "Fiji" would include all the images you took in Fiji, but not any images from other places.)

Although the preceding example is simplified, collections can have a lot of information. You can include all the image adjustments you made on an image, for example, or specify that the image is part of a specific project. You can also name the collection, making it easier to manage and find the images in it. By default, all images open in Photoshop appear in the Imaging workspace (refer to Figure 1-5). Although you can create collections and save them in other places, you can also save collections

Surgical treatment of obesity in children and adolescents.

Bariatric surgery is a good option for the treatment of obesity and morbid obesity. It can be performed in patients with morbid obesity and in patients with complex psychiatric disorders.

Anastomosis of a small bowel is difficult to perform during pediatric age because the patients are smaller than adults and the incisions are more challenging to perform. The authors report a personal series of 21 surgical procedures performed in 18 adolescent patients from 2001 to 2006, with a mean follow-up of 47.4 months. All the procedures were performed by laparoscopy. There were four (19%) early postoperative complications. Mortality was nil, with one late death because of sepsis; all the early complications were resolved. The postoperative weight loss was important, with a mean of 67.8% at 12 months and 67.3% at 6 years after surgery. The gastric reduction resulted in a reduction of mean values of blood pressure, glucose, cholesterol and hemoglobin A1c. At 6 years, complications were observed in 8.3% of the patients. The new laparoscopy for the reduction of gastric volume allows a few years of follow-up and a good long-term response with the correction of most of comorbidities. Tender green." "See the tender greenness of the fruit?" "That's what his dying looks like." #### What's New in the Adobe Photoshop CC 2018 Version 19?

This invention relates to new and useful improvements in apparatus used to coat dye receptive textile fibers with a dyestuff as soon as they have been pulled from a textile machine, such as a doffer. In prior art techniques, the most common type of coater has comprised an elongate trough having a broad bottom and side walls. This coater is usually placed vertically so that the yarn to be dyed is caused to fall into the coater as it is withdrawn from the doffer or whatever other type of textile machine is used. This coating device may be rotated in order to obtain the desired uniform coating of the yarns. In a typical prior art process, the proper mixing of dyestuff and water is effected in a mixing chamber of the type having means to dilute the dyes, and a reservoir tank in which the dye-water mixture is stored. It is usual for this mixing chamber to have an oval cross-section, with a diameter substantially less than the diameter of the reservoir tank. After this mixing, a pump is utilized to force the dye solution through a dye path to the coater which is usually positioned above the mixing chamber. If this dye path is long or if it branches into many lengths, it is at least normally necessary to provide a series of valves or shut-off devices to control the flow of dye solution to the coater. These valves or shut-off devices usually comprise a set of spaced, relatively close-fitting plates, or shut-off plates, and these are located at the outlet of the dye path so that they may be actuated to open and close the dye outlet. The plates are usually arranged in a single, longitudinally extending row or series of rows, and they are actuated by hand or by a simple rod or chain. In a typical arrangement, the dye path leads to the trough of the coater which has an oval cross-section and a diameter slightly greater than the cross-sectional diameter of the dye path. The dye path is normally located at the bottom of the trough, and the inlet of the dye solution is generally positioned at the top of the trough so that the dyestuff solution will flow into the coater. This solution then flows over the coater, and it is often necessary to have a series of baffles or other type of screening means in order to prevent, or at least minimize, the formation of dye droplets which may be deposited on a screen or platen at the outlet of the trough. In the past
