So instead of defaulting to the first three arguments (which would be String, Integer, Integer) I want to use the given arguments from the of() call. The code I currently use is: Stream stream = Stream.of("foo", "bar").stream().map(String::length) .max(Integer::max); How can I achieve this? It would be also helpful to see an explanation on how this works. A: You can use something like (just an example): Stream stream = Stream.of("foo", "bar") .map(s -> s.length()) .collect(Collectors.toMap(lambdaString -> String.valueOf(lambdaString), lambdaString -> lambdaString,

DUBLIN, Ireland — Ireland is poised to become the first country in the world to allow women and girls to give birth at any time during a pregnancy, making it possible to complete a pregnancy under any circumstance, including while breastfeeding. Opponents to the change say it risks putting babies at risk of premature death and create a "social experiment" in a country where there is already one of the highest rate of abortion in Europe. "I think it's an absolutely mad idea," said Dr. Michael Curtis, a consultant in obstetrics and gynaecology and medical consultant for the National Maternity Hospital. "This is an idea that the whole world is laughing at." The Department of Health in Dublin announced on Wednesday that women will be allowed to travel outside of Dublin, Cork or Limerick to a center where they will be able to give birth until just past the due date.
